(Tampa, Fla.) March 11, 2015. – One outstanding student and one exemplary teacher will be recognized for their dedication to lifelong learning and leadership at the Education is Key Breakfast on April 17 from 7:30–9 a.m. at the Glazer Children's Museum.

The Education is Key Breakfast honors a student and teacher who have made an impact at their schools through their leadership, hunger for knowledge and drive to succeed. Special guests at this year's Breakfast include keynote speaker Bob Conigliaro, the vice president of community relations for Caspers Company McDonald's Restaurants, and honorary chair Jeff Eakins, the acting superintendent of Hillsborough County Schools. Chair members Barbara Hancock and Joyce Cotton will also be in attendance.

The Glazer Children's Museum has hosted the Education is Key Breakfast since 2013. Proceeds from the annual event help raise funds for the Museum's Title 1 School Partnership Program. Last year's recipients were Outstanding Student Alexandra Meck and Outstanding Teacher Leronya Vaughn-Dunmore.

"I feel privileged to be affiliated with an organization whose tireless efforts to educate the community's youth are executed through innovative and exciting events that draw patrons to contribute towards museum initiatives," said Vaughn-Dunmore.

Education is the key to turning Tampa Bay's youth into strong learners and leaders. The Glazer Children's Museum is excited to celebrate a student and teacher who represent hard work and development as lifelong learners and leaders.
